

Having media outlets increasingly concentrated in fewer hands cannot accomplish anything positive for the American people and may do great harm in the long run.